Patient Ends Life When About to Undergo Eighteenth Operation.

Portchester, N. Y.—Advised by surgeons that he would have to undergo his eighteenth operation if he wished to save his life, Alexander T. Jackson, thirty-seven years old, committed suicide at his home here by cutting his throat with a knife. Jackson suffered for eight years from the effects of malignant blood poisoning.

Eight years ago a horse stepped on the great toe of his left foot. The toe was amputated, then the toe next to it and finally all the toes of that foot. To save his leg the foot was amputated at the ankle. Several months later the leg was amputated at the knee and then at the hip. Within a year the right leg had to be removed at the ankle.

Specialists tried to avoid another operation, but with no success. Jackson was admitted to four hospitals and was attended by some of the best surgeons in the East. At last his right leg was amputated at the hip, making the seventeenth operation. This seemed to provide a stop to the inroads of the blood poisoning. But three weeks ago surgeons told Jackson that to save his life the four fingers of his right hand, which had become infected, would have to be removed. Despairing, Jackson killed himself.
